BREAKING GOVERNMENT DATA SILOS

As the importance of people-centred data increases, all levels of the Australian government are beginning to realise the benefits of institutional collaboration. Through the analysis and observation of data, the public sector can establish services that provide a better quality of living to Australian society.

However, sharing data across departments and levels of government isn't simple. Instead, data remains siloed, preventing government bodies from collaborating, sharing, analysing, and visualising data.

Understand how your organisation can adapt to the changing digital climate by embracing a healthier organisational culture. You'll learn how to foster cross-institutional trust, leverage your organisation's ability to provide services through the sharing of data, understand the policies and procedures that govern data, and embrace the digital revolution by implementing new technologies.

► Develop effective service delivery through collaboration and sharing of data

► Establish a cross-institutional culture and foster trust

► Constitute and understand efficient government legislation, standards, and frameworks

► Navigate the digital revolution and embrace new technologies to retain the integrity and usability of data

WHAT OUR DELEGATES ARE SAYING

"Very worthwhile and incredibly valuable. Liquid Learning is excellent. Really flawless, thank you."

"The best conference I have been to. Packed an extraordinary amount of information, speakers, and messages into the 2 days."

UNDERSTAND CULTURAL & REGULATORY BARRIERS TO DATA SHARING
KEYNOTE   9:00 - 9:50

Data sharing transforms how governments translate data into effective reforms and public services. Join Ian as he goes through the frameworks he developed with the Data Analytics Centre to promote cross-institutional collaboration.

Dr Ian Oppermann
Chief Data Scientist Department of Customer Service
Chief Executive Officer NSW Data Analytics Centre

HOW INADEQUATE GOVERNANCE IS HOLDING AUSTRALIA BACK FROM THE AI REVOLUTION
CASE STUDY   9:50 - 10:40

AI will soon be capable of interacting naturally with humans, moving beyond completing individual tasks. Paul will dive into what he believes is holding Australian organisations back from adopting and developing AI solutions that can refine your data governance.

Paul Dalby Manager, Business Development
Australian Institute of Machine Learning - University of Adelaide

THE ROLE OF CHANGE MANAGEMENT IN IMPLEMENTING DATA GOVERNANCE
CASE STUDY   11:00 - 11:40

Data governance implementation changes your data management culture, processes, and policies; shifting how your institution thinks and behaves when it comes to data. Join Selva to explore how governance processes can build credence within your organisation, policies, and data-driven decision-making.

Dr Selvaraaju Murugesan
Senior Director, Innovation & Data Analytics
ACT Government, Transport Canberra & City Services Directorate

STREAMLINING YOUR DATA ANALYTICS PROCESS THROUGH STRONGER DATA MANAGEMENT
CASE STUDY   11:40 - 12:30

Janin will discuss the first step towards producing cleaner data for analytics and how it starts with managing data in the most efficient way. Delve into how implementing guidelines and following protocols will streamline the analytics process for your department and provide beneficial insights.

Dr Janin Bredehoeft
Executive Manager, Research and Analytics
Workplace Gender Equality Agency

TARGETED WORK TO IMPROVE DATA LITERACY ACROSS YOUR DEPARTMENT
CASE STUDY   1:30 - 2:30

Data literacy is a core element when developing a culture of data, empowering workers to ask relevant questions behind data and communicating its meaning to others. Tim will discuss how the Department of Industry, Innovation and Science developed its data strategy by developing data as a business-as-usual activity across the agency.

Tim Beard
Manager, Data Strategy
Department of Industry, Innovation & Science

ENABLING COMMUNITIES TO INTEGRATE DATA ON PEOPLE, BUSINESS & THE ENVIRONMENT
CASE STUDY   2:30 - 3:20

Irina will discuss how the Location Index (LOC-I) project, part of the Data Integration Partnership for Australia (DIPA) program, brought together several government agencies to build a framework to support critical government decision making. This project contributed to economic, social, and environmental sustainability by providing a consistent way for seamless integration of data on people, business, and the environment.

Irina Bastrakova
Director, Spatial Data Architecture
Geoscience Australia

BRIDGING THE DATA DIVIDE THROUGH DATA COLLABORATION
CASE STUDY   3:40 - 4:30

When organisations don't have the right tools to share data, it can result in the same or similar data being collected by different divisions costing the organisation money. Join Kristi and Adam as they discuss how you can bridge the data divide with key tips on departmental collaboration to support data fluidity across your organisation.

Kristi Mansfield
Co-Founder, Chief Executive Officer
Adam Peaston
Co-Founder, Data Scientist
Seer Data & Analytics

DRINKS & CANAPÉS   4:30 - 5:30
Continue to network while you enjoy complimentary refreshments.

CROSS-COLLABORATION & INTERDEPARTMENTAL SUPPORT
KEYNOTE   9:00 - 10:00

In a world where duplicated data, privacy concerns, and usability of data are preventing progress within the public sector, cross-institutional collaboration can improve research capabilities and outcomes. River will discuss how she worked with the Australian Financial Security Authority to strengthen the education of Australian students through the most comprehensive microdata file in the world.

River Paul
Chief Economist & Statistician
Australian Financial Security Authority

MAKING DATA DISCOVERABLE, ACCESSIBLE & TRUSTED FOR USE IN GOVERNMENT
CASE STUDY   10:00 - 11:00

If improvements in data can change lives, then it must be accessible. Phil will discuss how the ACT government has implemented it's Data Governance & Management Framework by exploring, overseeing, and supervising data, terms of sharing, and the impact of privacy through assessment.

Philip Crawford Digital Delivery Manager
ACT Government, Chief Minister, Treasury & Economic Development Directorate

HELPING GOVERNMENT AGENCIES IN BECOMING DATA-DRIVEN AUTHORITIES
CASE STUDY   11:20 - 12:20
