Workplace Mental Health & Wellbeing Workshop

BACKGROUND

The impact of mental health-related issues on NZ business, government and people cannot be overstated. Mental health issues affect job involvement, job satisfaction, loyalty, performance and turnover. Nearly one in four people will experience a mental health episode each year and according to the World Health Organisation, depression is set to be the number one cause of disability across the world by 2030.

On the other hand, when employees experience positive physical and mental health, they are more likely to be engaged, motivated and productive in their roles. Whether you come from a safety lens, a health and wellness role or an HR and OD standpoint, it is crucial to support a proactive, preventative approach to mental health and wellbeing. Acquiring the tools to develop and roll-out a cost-effective, scalable initiative can make a real difference at all levels of your organisation.

This practical and interactive two-day course has been expressly designed to support your business at any level of mental health and wellbeing maturity. This comprehensive program will enable you to evaluate how mental health plays a role in your organisation, identify common workplace issues and understand employer responsibilities and risks. With this thorough grounding, you will tackle strategies to raise organisational awareness, educate leaders, managers and employees, as well as destigmatise conversations about mental health in your organisation.
